

Conrad Palejowski

Paralegal

I am a dedicated dispute resolution paralegal specialising in civil litigation, fraud, and securities disputes, supporting both small businesses and major international corporations throughout the litigation process.

Conrad Palejowski is a paralegal in the disputes resolution department, specialising in civil litigation, civil fraud, and securities litigation. Conrad advises a diverse range of clients at all levels of the civil court system, from supporting small businesses and entrepreneurs during the COVID-19 crisis as Student Director for the BPP Enterprise Legal Advice Clinic, to international corporations whilst working at Slaughter and May on the “Tuna Bonds” scandal (cross-jurisdictional white-collar crime) in the High Court.

Conrad’s legal practice is enriched by his creative background, having started his career in television production after graduating with First Class Honours in English & Drama from Queen Mary University of London. His transition from the creative industry to litigation equips him with a unique skill set and a distinctive approach to delivering excellent client service.
